The changing of the guard at the Grand Palace is a 100% must-see. The Temple of the Emerald Buddha is used for ceremonies and holidays attended by HM the King, and this is the only place in the Palace where photo and video shooting is not allowed. The body is covered with gold leaf and the eyes and footsteps are encrusted with mother of pearl. The easiest way to see all major tourist attractions of the Thai capital is to take a boat tour along the Chao Phraya River. You will see the Chinatown, floating market, the Temple of Dawn, and feed catfish. Back to the hotel for the rest and changes. To experience the other side of Bangkok we will invite you to the Baiyoke Sky Deck, one of the city's highest points, from which you will see the busy downtown area with high-rise buildings, golf courses and parks. Lunch at the restaurant on the 75th floor. The day will continue with the visit to Sea Life Bangkok Ocean World Sea Life, the largest aquarium in South East Asia. Begin your journey into the astounding underwater world by taking a look at giant spider crabs and giant Pacific octopi. These aquatic creatures amaze us with their ability to camouflage themselves with surrounding rocks and other ocean features. We challenge you to brave the stroll down our Shark Walk. A thin sheet of acrylic separates your brave souls from the five different types of sharks swimming in the tank! The walk is both fun and adventurous, giving you an opportunity to marvel at all the sharks while learning fascinating facts about them. Three different large interactive screens will present you with facts about all the shark species in the tanks. Witness an underwater rainbow of colours by visiting our Coral Reef zone. A variety of coral and fish species present a dazzling spectacle of underwater life, tantalizing kids of all ages by allowing them to get a close-up experience of this amazing visual presentation of underwater life. Overnight in Bangkok.

Day 2.

The journey will start with one of the most favourite places of HM Rama IV – cave temple Tham Khao Luang (Wat Bun Thawi). As the legend goes, in early times there was a passage leading to a mysterious town inhabited by women only. Afterwards, you are going to Wat Khao Banda. According to another legend, 309 years ago, in the heyday of Ayutthaya, there lived a wealthy man who had two wives. Once he decided to make a large donation for the construction of a temple. The main building of the complex – ubosot – was erected to celebrate one of his wives and a slightly smaller building - viharn - was made in honor of the other. Both buildings face each other and look very much alike. A tall white chedi was built in between as the symbol of the benefactor but it has leant over time. People believe that it leans towards the building dedicated to the wife he loved more. After lunch you will visit the beautiful delicate temple Wat Mahathatu Voraviharn comprised of five white pagodas, walk around the glorious Wat Yai Suwanaram deeply revered by Rama V and eventually see the ancient Khmer temple Wat Kamphaeng Laeng – a fabulous example of the XI century's architecture. In the evening you will eye-witness a fantastic phenomenon near the Khao Nang Phanthurat rock. Every day at the same time before it gets dark millions of bats fly out of a small cave near the summit of the mountain. They form a long line which will trail above your heads for about 25 minutes. Dinner.

Day 2.

On this day you will visit the Wat Huay Mongkol temple complex famous for its enormous statue of one of Thailand's most famous monks named Luang Phor Thuad. His name is steeped in history. He is said to have saved a whole village from famine and drought. When the country was suffering from the lack of water and the land received no drop of rain for months, the monk hypnotized people to make them drink sea water as if it was fresh. Then you will go the Wat Thow Takiab temple located on the top of the hill and will be rewarded with an astounding panoramic view. There is an imposing 19 meters high statue of Buddha close to the temple. Then you will set off on a safari tour featuring cobras, crocodiles and even a little though very gifted elephant and then may enjoy elephant riding. After lunch you will continue your tour over the tops of the mountains to visit Khao Sa Naam Chai temple and admire the fantastic view. At the end of the day you will visit the artificial Tham

Khao Tao cave which seamlessly attached to the natural rock. The temple erected above the cave will marvel you with the gorgeous delicately painted relief Buddha images which have certain resemblance to the modern graffiti art. Dinner.

Day 3.

On this day you will visit the Hua Hin railway station – one of the most beautiful and significant historical sites of the city. The station still operates and long-distance and short-distance trains regularly visit it. Here you even may have some coffee in a cozy coffee shop. Afterwards you will go to the seaside, board a long-tail boat for the journey to the magnificent beach in the national park to visit one more unique site – the Phraya Nakhon cave. In the middle of the gigantic cave there is a small elegant pavilion standing gloriously in a ray of sunlight falling from a circular hole in the cave ceiling. This pavilion was built for HM Rama V. Afterwards you will have lunch right on the seashore or simply enjoy the placidity looking at the waves lapping on the beach and relax under the roof of palm leaves. Picnic-style lunch. Transfer to Bangkok.
